832. THE TREATMENT OF LUNG ECHINOCOCCOSIS (Russian text) - Dimitrov S. - VESTN.KHIR. 1956, 7 (71-76)

The author operated upon 260 patients with lung echinococcosis. For superficially situated cysts an extrapleural thoracotomy was performed with removal of the cyst and a tight suturing of the thoracic wall. In cases of suppuration of the cyst the cavity was drained. In the absence of pleural adhesions a wide thoracotomy was performed with extirpation of the cyst, and a tight suturing of the thorax. The mortality rate was 4.6%. The author points out that different methods of surgical intervention are employed depending upon the size and localization of the cyst and associated complications. (S)

"Concerning the So-called 'Mixed Forms' of Hemorrhagic Diathesis."

Sofia, Suvremenna Meditsina, Vol 14, No 8, 1963, pp 17-21.

Abstract: /Author's English summary modified/ Modern methods of investigating the processes of blood coagulation, the structure and function of the thrombocytes, and the vessel factor have disclosed new forms of hemorrhagic diathesis which cannot easily be classified among the three known groups. The author therefore suggests a new group of "mixed forms," including four specific diseases, viz., the Willebrand-Juergens syndrome (coagulothrombicytopathy), Angiohemophilia A and B (angiocoagulopathy), Bernard Soulier's disease (angiothrombocytopathy), and the Kasabach Meritt syndrome (angiocoagulothrombocytopathy).

"Operative Treatment of Leg Thrombophlebitis."

Sofia, Voenno Meditsinsko Delo, Vol 18, No 1, Feb 1963; pp 20-22.

Abstract: Detailed report of the cases of 2 male patients aged 35 and 53 years respectively; review of data on these and 2 other patients. Based on this clinical experience and review of literature, authors recommend surgical treatment in such cases; fear of thromboembolism during surgery are inappropriate deterrent to operative treatment since this complication occurs just as frequently with conservative therapy. Two case reports; no references.

"New Drugs for Veterinary Applications"

Sofia, Veterinarna Sbirka, Vol 63, No 7, 1966, pp 24-26

Abstract: The production of a number of drugs for veterinary applications has been developed at Vetprom. Among them are biofurazone (a combination of nitrofurazone and chlortetracycline) for the prophylaxis of paratyphoid abortions of sheep and biofurazolidone 40 and 80 (conatining the same two ingredients) for the treatment of a number of infections diseases. Tetracleandromycin (identical with sigmamycin), to be used in the treatment of intestinal infections of calves, is produced. Antidispepsin (Identical with enterotone) and enterovit (identical with amfurox) are produced and supplied for the same purpose. The latter contains chloramphenicol. A new preparation is sulfofurohumin, which contains furazolidone, humin carboxylic acid /?/, sulfaguanidine, and trace elements. Good results were obtained by using it in combination with enterovit in cases in which sigmamycin was ineffective. Gamma-globulin for the treatment of intestinal diseases of calves is supplied. A number of vitamin-antibiotic-mineral supplements to animal feeds
